

THE CREATIVE WELL: A RETREAT FOR ARTISTS & WRITERS

At Blueberry Brooke

FRIDAY,
OCTOBER 5TH
THRU MONDAY,
OCTOBER 8TH
2012

Many of us know the sense of homecoming that attends the creative act. Many have experienced the quenched inner thirst that comes when we drink from the creative wellspring. This retreat for artists and writers offers an ideal setting for guests to drink deeply from that well, giving participants the silence, solitude and space that are often hard to find in daily life.

With scheduled hours to work, gathering times at evening and morning meals, and a chance in the afternoons to share their projects, guests will find that this retreat offers all the quiet and structure necessary to devote themselves to their craft. It also offers the support of other guests and rooms that share that purpose. Hosted and created by an artist and certified creative coach, Blueberry Brooke was designed to foster creativity, restore vitality and encourage guests to do what they love.

The rooms and grounds are steeped in a beauty both rich with age, and tender with enchantment. It is an inspired and inspiring setting, perfect for writing and artists groups, as well as those working on their own. Whether on a morning walk amongst sun gilt birch, with a cup of hot tea and a notebook in a corner of the great room library, or by the wide inviting tables of the schoolhouse studio, guests will find an abundance of space and countless invitations to drink of the creative well at Blueberry Brooke.

This is the place to bring a half written story or the sketches that you have been neglecting. The impossible feels possible here and the whole place is singing with creative energy.

- Retreat Guest

“I have learned, as a rule of thumb, never to ask whether you can do something. Say, instead, that you are doing it. Then fasten your seat belt. The most remarkable things follow.”

-Julia Cameron
